About us Français Türkçe Italiano

The Levantine Heritage Foundation is an association which promotes research, preservation and education in the heritage, arts and culture of the communities of the Levant region encompassed by the former Ottoman Empire between the 17th and 20th centuries. The peoples and communities who traded and settled in the area were diverse in origin and faiths, including Venetians, Genoese, Greeks, Turks, Persians, Armenians, Jews, French, Italians, British, many other European and Americans. With the dissolution of the Ottoman Empire in 1923, many of the cosmopolitan communities of the Levant region scattered around the globe. The Levantine Heritage Foundation is piecing together these communities' histories and legacies for future generations to study and build on.

We had our first International Conference, The Levantines: Commerce & Diplomacy in Istanbul between 35 November 2014 in Pera House (British Consulate - General) and in Casa d'Italia (Italian Cultural Center) - programme. The conference was a great success and 150 people participated in this three day conference. The Symposium proceedings were recently published and are available on our website Read more:

We have just launched a new look to the home page of our website which we hope will make for an easier navigation experience by our readers and improve connections with individuals and organisations who share a similar vision to us. Feel free to provide your feedback and suggestion as we aim to present the considerable body of work that has been entrusted to us and hopefully will inspire the next generation to continue the work on Levantine studies.

Next year is the 100th anniversary of the Great Fire of Smyrna in September 1922 and we as LHF would like mark with a suitable tone this critical moment both for the city and its diverse communities. Your ideas are welcome and will guide us as we move forward to remember, foster understanding and research in the future.

There are other opportunities to support the LHF by becoming a member, making a donation, sponsoring a gathering or contributing your time. If you wish to contribute in some way towards the activities of the LHF, please contact Quentin Compton-Bishop at chairman@levantineheritage.com.

Request for information by Damien Dessane - Jean D. Contaxis or C.D. Contaxis postcard editor

Around the 1900's came out a series of postcards about Ayvalik (Aivaly) which are very valuable to understand the former urbanism, architecture and lifestyle of the city. Contaxis appeared on several of his postcards with a round hat and a cane. If you have more information or suggestions of archives to consult on his origins, birth date, life and family, please contact me at damdes\(at\)hotmail.comhotmail.com).

Request for information by Houssine Alloul - Belgian individuals and/or families active and resident in the Ottoman lands

I am working on a book manuscript that examines the relations between the Kingdom of Belgium and the Ottoman Empire. Those relations were not only political/diplomatic in nature, but represented considerable economic interests too, especially from the 1880s onward. Belgian financiers (and engineers) were involved in (or monopolized) the construction and operation of trams and public utilities in cities such as Istanbul, Salonika, Beirut and Smyrna. Some were involved in real estate and others in banking. The economic links between the Kingdom and Empire go back much further, however. Traders from the Southern Netherlands/Belgium had been exporting cloth, weapons and other manufactured goods to the major port towns of the empire since at least the eighteenth century. I recently gave a talk on this subject for the Foundation – see below.

I conceive of my book as a socio-cultural history of these variegated politico-commercial links and networks between Belgium and the Ottoman Empire. It also tries to make sense of how Brussels aimed to stimulate those links through proactive forms of “economic diplomacy”. An important element that is explored is how several non-state actors (traders, engineers, service men) tried to gain access to official, diplomatic and consular circles (and vice versa). This involves social network analysis and hence requires not only consulting state records and business archives, but also private/family archives (letters, diaries, photographs). This is a warm call therefore for any advice with regard to such archives pertaining to Belgian individuals and/or families active and resident in the Ottoman lands. These could include the following:

Jean-Joseph Lemoine – Charles-François Coûteaux – Charles Helbig – François Frédérici – Georges Nagelmackers – Jules Delecourt-Wincqz – Josse Allard – Alfred Leclercq – Pascal-François Levaux – Pierre Maus – Edmond de Lobel

I would also be greatly interested in utilizing private records from members of major Levantine families with professional links to Belgium too, such as:

David Glavany – Gustave de Hübsch – Nessim Roditi

Any lead or suggestions would be most appreciated!

Thank you in advance.

Request for information by Briony Llewellyn - Luigi Mayer and Clara Barthold; Levantine society in Pera, c.1786-94

Luigi Mayer (c.1750/55-1803) was an artist from Rome who worked for Sir Robert Ainslie, the British Ambassador in Constantinople, c.1786-94. Mayer made a series of magnificent watercolours of the city and its environs, as well as diplomatic ceremonies, many of which are in the British Museum. In 1792, he accompanied three British travellers, George Graves, Charles Berners and Henry Tilson, on the Ottoman leg of their extended Grand Tour. They visited Egypt, Palestine, Syria and the south-west coast of Turkey, before Mayer returned to Ainslie in Constantinople. In 1794, Mayer accompanied Ainslie on his journey home to England through the Moldo-Wallachian Principalities. Many of his watercolours appeared as aquatints in a series of volumes, published in London, 1801-10.

Although Mayer was working within the parameters of the British Embassy, records on where he lived or his mode of living do not seem to survive. At some point during his stay, he married Clara (or Chiara) Barthold, some of whose family were dragomans. She was said to have been of either Greek or Bulgarian origin, but very little is known of her, how they met or with whom they associated. She too was an artist, possibly taught by Mayer, since her style closely reflects that of her husband.

I have researched Mayer extensively over many years, recently publishing an article on him in Cornucopia (Issue 53, 2015). Philip Mansel and I are currently planning a possible exhibition and accompanying publication. We would like to discover more about the social life of the Levantine community in Pera and Galata, within which Mayer and his wife worked. We also want to learn more about the daily activities within the British embassy under Sir Robert Ainslie. In addition I am looking for original sources where I might find further information about Luigi Mayer or the Barthold family. If anyone has any suggestions, please contact me: Briony Llewellyn, on bjl\(at\)btinternet.combtinternet.com).

Request for information by Quentin Compton-Bishop – Joly family of Smyrna

I am related to the Joly family but through their later branch in Lebanon. I would appreciate information on the Smyrna branch so I can fill the gaps in my ancestral lines knowledge. A recent e-bay sale of photos belonging to the Smyrna branch highlighted my lack of knowledge of this branch. I am happy to share what I know of this family with other Joly descendants. chairman@levantineheritage.com

Request for information by Tony Valsamidis – Valsamidis family of Alexandria, Egypt

I am doing some research into my family and would be very interested to have any leads that would help me understand its genealogy better. The earliest mentions I have of the family are entries for them in the 1908 edition of the Directory of Egypt as butter and oil merchants. I know that a great uncle of mine, Dimitris, was a Professor of Classics at the Sorbonne up to his death in 1957. His signature appears on the circulation list for the issue of Cavafy's 1910 collection of poems. At least one of Dimitris' brothers also lived in Paris. My grandfather, John, attended the American University in Beirut and later worked for the British Army in Alexandria. Another member married into the Christodoulou family and one of her children, Christos, went to Athens in the 1960s. One of these Christodoulous now lives and works as a singer in Barcelona. Before Alexandria, I understand that the Valsamidis family was living in Istanbul, but I have no more information about that. Other people with the name Valsamidis that I have found are a sponge diver who founded a museum on Kalymnos, a poet in Kastellorizo, and a lift manufacturer. I do not know if we are related. In recent times, there have been two academics in British Universities with the similar name Varsamidis.

The epigraphist, P.M. Fraser, once assured me that the name had its origin in Rhodes, but others have suggested that it comes from the Pontus. If it's any help, I know that my grandfather had fair hair and blue eyes.

I'd be very grateful if you wrote to me at avalsamo\(at\)gmail.com with any information you have about either the Valsamidis or Christodoulou or related families.

Request for information by Stefan Haderer – Frederic George Barker

Frederic George Barker was born in 1870 in Alexandria, son of Sidney Barker and the Greek Dikaia Koutelas. Sidney was the son of Edward and became a banker and vice consul in Sweden. Frederic had 5 siblings: Alfred, Eric, Karlos (who died in England quite young), Anne Mary and Parthenopi. He joined Empress Elisabeth as a lecturer for Greek and travel companion in 1891, where he first met her in Alexandria, and became her official reader in 1897. After Sisi's death in 1898, Frederic returned to Alexandria, Egypt, where he worked as an agent/consular for the Austrian Foreign Ministry until 1903. Then he landed a job for the Egyptian Government, but I do not know as what and for how long. He also entered the Freemason Phoenix Lodge in Corfu in 1926 and became Ceremonial Master of the Rosicrucian Order in 1934. His year of death is unknown. Frederic had no children and left his entire estate to Karlos Kalogeropoulos on Corfu. The descendants of this family still know some things, but I was hoping anybody might know more details and even have details about the diaries which he wrote. stefan.haderer(at)posteo.at

We hope you find our website and events interesting and useful. Our work is mainly achieved thanks to our volunteers and site contributors. However, we do have significant real costs in adding to and maintaining the website, funding small research projects, organising events and preparing publications and other materials. Where we charge for events, we aim to cover only the direct costs of venue hire and catering in order to make them accessible to as wide an audience as possible, including students and early career researchers.

Membership is just £20 a year, or £80 for 5 years or you can become a life member for £500. Benefits include priority booking for events and discounts on LHF publications and events where we have to charge a fee.

In response to residents of Turkey asking us how they can join without PayPal, we have arranged for people to be able to join through Eventbrite with an extra button added in all upcoming events allowing people to pay for annual membership via credit cards which of course gives free access for the online events during that subscription.
