31.7.1848 (from RWC Constantinople)

We are suffering greatly from the heat, the thermometer is generally 86 degrees in the shade. The cholera still continues in some localities. The deaths at Jassy during 40 days amounted to 12,000, the number is now under 40 per day. My brother has taken a very nice house with a garden in the adjoining Turkish Quarter which will serve for a summer residence... this privilege has lately been granted by the Sultan on account of the demand and scarcity of houses since the late fire.

Notes for Martin Joseph Vachrum Helm:

We have been trying to find out how Joseph Helm who was born in Freinsheim (father Franz Tobias born in Vienna) came to London. He was supposed to have been sentenced to the guillotine in France but escaped here. He was at one time Premier Danseur at the court of the Elector Palatine. When he came here he was a dancing master travelling to Bath and Cheltenham. His wife opened a school in Worcester. Although we know he had mixed in court circles, we don't know how he came to know the Higginsons and marry so well in England. His wife, Sarah, and sister Sophia (m. John Mucklow) were married in St Martins in the Fields in 1777. I would love to find out if Joseph knew the Wratislaws in Europe or met Mark when he came over. The Higginsons were obviously very wealthy - I can forward you Mary Higginson's will if you'd like to read it. She mentions Mark Wratislaw and several grandchildren and that's how I was able to add the name to my Genesreunited family tree.

128. Wenzel Ignatius Wratislaw<sup>724</sup>, born c. 1660<sup>724</sup>; died 1727<sup>724</sup>. He was the son of 256. Adam Leopold Wratislaw.

Notes for Wenzel Ignatius Wratislaw:
The Dukes of Marlborough and the Principality of Mindelheim

originally published in (1999) 19 (160) Family History, the Journal of the Institute of Heraldic and Genealogical Studies 325-335

Sir John Churchill, first duke of Marlborough, was one of the greatest military commanders in history. He held the office of Captain-General 1690-91 and 1702-11. During the War of the Spanish Succession he was commander-in-chief of the armies of Great Britain and the Netherlands. His greatest victories over the French were Ramillies (1706), and Oudenarde (1708).

But it is for the Battle of Blenheim (1704), in which Anglo-Austrian forces, led by Churchill and the Austrian general, Prince Eugene of Savoy, defeated the French and Bavarians under the French marshal Camille de Tallard and the Elector Maximilian II Emanuel of Bavaria, that Churchill is best remembered.

Churchill's achievements were matched by his ambition. He was always ready to accept, and often actively sought, appropriate recognition for his undoubted talents. The dukedom of Marlborough is the only one now in existence to have been conferred on a man who was born the son of a commoner, and with no prospect of inheriting either a title or large estates(1).

Another unique distinction which Churchill eagerly accepted- though his influential wife, Sarah, was opposed(2), was the rank and title of a prince of the Holy Roman Empire. This was conferred upon the duke by a grateful Emperor Leopold I, after the victory at Blenheim. The principality of Mindelheim followed in 1705. No British subject before or since ever received such a rank(3).

The present duke is John George Vanderbilt Henry Spencer-Churchill. His British titles are duke of Marlborough (Eng 1702), marquess of Blandford (Eng 1702), earl of Sunderland (Eng 1643), earl of Marlborough (Eng 1689), baron Spencer (of Eyemouth, Eng 1603), baron Churchill (of Sandridge, Eng 1685).

The great duke's only son, John Churchill, Marquess of Blandford, had died of small-pox at Cambridge in February 1703, only two months after his father had been created duke of Marlborough and marquess of Blandford(4). These titles had been created with the usual remainder to his heir male. To prevent their extinction with the death of the first duke, his English titles, the manor of Woodstock, granted 28th January 1705(5) with of 22,000 acres in Oxfordshire, Blenheim Palace(6), and a pension of £5,000 a year on the Post Office, were settled on his heirs female by the Duke of Marlborough Annuity Act 1706(7).

John Churchill was succeeded on his death by his eldest daughter, Henrietta, as duchess of Marlborough in her own right. Her son William Godolphin, marquess of Blandford, died in 1731, and on her death she was succeeded as third duke by Sir Charles Spencer, his son, who was also her nephew as Henrietta's sister Lady Anne Churchill, had married Charles Spencer, third earl of Sunderland. Sir Charles Spencer's younger brother, the Honourable John Spencer, of Althorp, Northamptonshire, was the ancestor of the earls Spencer.

The fifth duke took the surname Spencer-Churchill in 1817, but the dukes are direct descendants of John Churchill, first duke of Marlborough, through his second daughter.

The statute 6 Anne c 6 did not affect the imperial titles, which accordingly became extinct upon the death of the great duke of Marlborough, in 1722. Therefore Henrietta, duchess of Marlborough, the second of the line, though herself a princess of the Holy Roman Empire, was also the last of the line to enjoy imperial honours. She could not pass the title to her son, nor could it pass to Sir Charles Spencer, earl of Sunderland, and third duke of Marlborough.

Neither could they be princes of Mindelheim, though, in part, for different reasons.

Most reference books describe the current duke of Marlborough as a prince of the Holy Roman Empire (1704), and prince of Mindelheim (1705). This, at least in part, is incorrect. How could this confusion arise? To answer that we must look at the circumstances of the creation.

The duke wrote to Sarah 4th June 1704 that Count Johann Wenzel Wratislaw, envoy of Leopold I, had told him that the Emperor wanted to make him a prince of the empire, with a territory and a seat in the imperial Diet(8).

Count Wratislaw conveyed to the duke a proposal to create him a sovereign prince of the Holy Roman Empire(9).

The emperor sought the formal approval of the Queen(10). This was duly given(11).

Difficulties were now seen. There were no imperial lands available. Churchill was a new man, only a small country gentleman, from a country at the very edge of Europe. But, though faced with the opposition of the largely German imperial nobility, the emperor felt personally committed to grant Churchill at least an honorific title(12).

Imperial titles descend in accordance with the conditions of the original grant. Most of these are to all male descendants and daughters. Thus the sons of a duke would be dukes, and each would pass the title to their sons, and so on ad infinitum. But, in the case of a sovereignty, only the eldest son of the eldest son would actually be the ruler (masculine primogeniture), though all male members of the family would share the title.

Although daughters would have the style of princess, they would not pass this to their own sons or daughters.

The title of prince of the Holy Roman Empire was granted to Churchill, all his children, heirs and lawful descendants, male and female. But did this mean male descendants and daughters, or was it to mean the heirs of his daughters also?

Churchill himself may have assumed that it did, when he wrote:

"What is offered will in historie for ever remaine an honour to [our] family"(13).

He was either assuming that the title was subject to a special remainder, so that it would pass through a daughter, or that he would have a son to succeed him. Yet the evidence indicates that the former interpretation was not shared by the German princes. In any case, as he was 54 years old, the birth of a son was not altogether out of the question, though Sarah duchess of Marlborough was by then too old to bear a child.

Emperor Leopold informed Churchill on the 28th August 1704 that he had created him a Prince of the Empire, with the rank of Highness, and addressed him as "Most Illustrious Cousin and most dear Prince"(14). This title was to be for himself and his heirs male and female. But Churchill had wanted an effective principality, not an empty title(15). Wratislaw told the emperor that a principality would be necessary to avoid offending a man on whom the empire still depended(16).

This was eventually granted, and Churchill was created prince of Mindelheim, Suabia, 18th November 1705, by Leopold's son, Emperor Joseph. Churchill was invested at an imperial Diet at Innsbrück on the 24th May 1706. Thus Churchill was finally to have a seat in the imperial diet.
