

From the author of CONSTANTINOPLE and LOUIS XVIII

Levant

Splendour and Catastrophe on the Mediterranean

by Philip Mansel

Published by John Murray
11th November 2010
Hardback £25.00

As pivotal centres for trade and commerce the three ports of Alexandria, Beirut and Smyrna played a key roll in the rise, and fall, of the Ottoman Empire. For five centuries these cities provided a window between East and West, unifying races and religions, and bringing together ideas and cultures in a collision of people and minds. These cities became hubs of indulgence and extravagance, as well as political battlefields for nationalism, cosmopolitanism and foreign incursion. Welcome to the world of Levant.

In Levant, Mansel maps these three iconic ports to explore the history of the Middle East. Using unpublished family papers to gain a personal perspective, Mansel describes the colourful and unexpected history of these three great cities. Charting their story, from the beginning of the French alliance with the Ottoman Empire, to today, Levant is the first English-language history of these fascinating cities.

Levant* has an undeniable relevance to the present day. Both as an exploration of cultural and political integration and as a commentary on the origins of the Middle East, the book has lessons and warnings for us all. In detailing how Muslims, Christians and Jews lived together in these cities – putting deals before ideals and pragmatism before ideology – Mansel's social commentary brings to life an important piece of history that is as engrossing as it is enlightening.

Philip Mansel is a historian of France and the Ottoman Empire. He has written histories of Constantinople and nineteenth-century Paris, as well as biographies of Louis XVIII and the Prince de Ligne. He writes for the Art Newspaper, the Times Literary Supplement and The Spectator. While writing Levant, he lived in Beirut and Istanbul. He is a fellow of the Royal Historical Society and member of the committee of the Chateau de Versailles research centre. To learn more about the author visit www.philipmansel.com

To order a copy of the book please call 01235 827702

Page 1 of 2

Praise for LEVANT

"The strengths of the book are colossal. Mansel's knowledge of the history and culture of these places is encyclopaedic... To anyone who has read Mansel's Constantinople: City of the World's Desire, it will be sufficient to say: read this one too. To anyone who has not, I can only say: read both of them."

Sunday Telegraph

"Highly recommended."

New Statesman

"...Instead of composing an elegy on a once powerful civilisation, Mansel has given the Levantine world its chronicle, and restored its weight in history..."

Spectator

"Highly enjoyable and intricately worked account of three great Mediterranean ports"

Economist

"I could scarcely put down this magnificent book, with its galloping narrative, its worldly analysis, sparkling anecdote..."

Financial Times

"With sober judgement but passionate feeling, Mansel has produced a work of formidable scholarship and subtlety, rich in colour, sights, personalities and horrifyingly abundant incident."

TLS.

Praise for *CONSTANTINOPLE: City of the World's Desire, 1453-1924

'The victory, the defeat, the magnificence, the squalor, the cruelty and the tolerance of the Ottoman years are all recorded there, Constantinople is one of those cities to which I always long to return, and the longing grows on every page'

The Sunday Telegraph

'Marvellous ... the experience of the whole city grows with the book ... you always feel close to the beat of Constantinople's raffish and mysterious heart'

The Observer

'A happy blend of scholarship and panache ... If you have visited Constantinople, read it: if not, buy it before you go'

The Evening Standard